PITH AND POINT.

—Where one "man" wants but little more below, "three" others are within hailing distance who want all. —Chicago Ledger.

—Another author of Shakespeare has been discovered. William is getting to be about as numerous as Washington's nurses. —San Francisco News.

An exchange says that two hundred thousand will support a man. In midsummer it supports the ice man and his entire family. —Phila. Ledger Call.

—Philanthropic Gent—Do you ever wash your face? Mendicant—I wash it every morning with great regularity.
Sir, I don't—I would advise you to wash it with soap, too. —Chicago Mail.

Young Lady—My dear Professor, I want to thank you for your lecture.
You made it all so plain that I could understand every word. Professor—I am truly glad you did understand it. I have studied the subject for about thirty years, and I flatter myself that I can bring the subject within the comprehension of the weakest intellect. —School Journal.

—"I'll engage you," said the theater manager to the actor in search of a job.
"But times are hard just now and I can't give you any part yet. How would one hundred dollars a week suit you?" "No, sir," said the actor, "I don't want to do at all. That isn't enough. Say, see here! Suppose you give me ten dollars a week and pay it."
—Somerville Journal.

—Now Haven grandmothers make present of ten thousand dollar checks when their granddaughters are married. The custom is a laudable one and would, doubtless, become very popular with married young men, even in Boston, although, of course, culture and the ability to make sense are the only indispensable requisites of a bride hereabouts. —Boston Globe.

Young Lady—Are you going shopping, ma? Mother—Yes, my darling.
Y. L.—Will you bring me a quarter of a yard of navy blue serge? M.—Certainly. Do you want it to patch? Y. L.— No. I want it for a bathing suit, and please bring me twenty-five yards of trimming. M.—Yes, but haven't you better use the trimming for a suit and the navy blue serge for the trimming?
—Chicago Tribune.

—Then you are going to the seaside soon, Cicely, dear," said her mother after. "Oh, yes, dear. We go to the mountains this year. The seaside is too hot. It ruins all one's nice summer dresses." "Yes, that's so.
Especially if you try to make them do two seasons, you know." "No need of a run to cloud that interview," it was not enough to them. —Hartford Post.

GOOD SHOOTING.

Some remarkable hunting adventures related by one of the Toledo sportsmen. "I have been to the Toledo sportsmen," remarked an old citizen. "I have heard of it." "Yes, they were lots of deer and ducks and squirrels. Why, Captain Huntley shot seventeen squirrels of one tree on the east side of the river, not far from where the brickyard now is. Old hunters did not think it much of a trick to shoot three or four deer or one hundred wild ducks in a day. Right down down there, where Point Place Club House stands, I shot two deer with a rifle at one shot. If a fellow had no meat in the house, all he had to do was to pick up his rifle and go out for an hour or two and shoot all he wanted.
And isn't that the way? I have seen the spaw of a wildcat fall up along the shore of the lake until it was at least two inches deep. You don't see that now. Whitefish have been pretty well cleaned out of the lake."

"But where Fish live I saw a man shoot four rabbits with a rifle at one shot, and down at Presque Isle a man shot eleven wild ducks at one shot. You see he got their heads in line and clipped the whole eleven of them as easy as rolling off a log."

"That was doing pretty well," suggested the scribbler.
"Yes, fairly well, but not as well as old man Olson did. You know Olson lived in this city and he was a real call a fellow like. He used to be a crack shot, and I was told of a shot he made that would make some of our modern day hunters blush. He shot a fox for ten years if he would make such a one. But old Olson did not think that any great thing."

"What was it?"
"Well, he went out hunting near the bay shore one day, and came across a deer. He killed the deer. The ball went right through it, killed a swan in the lake and bored right through the heads of nine wild ducks. Now that was a shot, but Olson could shoot; and please don't forget what I have told you about Olson when you hear these modern day snipe and sparrow hunters blow about what they have done." —Chicago

REPTILES IN MEXICO.

A Country Infested by Thousands of Creeping and Crawling Creatures.
As Eden and its serpent, so all these Mexican paradises are infested by a thousand dangerous creeping and crawling creatures, writes a correspondent. How often have Betty and I sighed for suits of battle armor, as—after a delightful day in some gray-washed landscape and an evening of music and dancing—the great hall of the mansion—our troubles began in the sil-lence of our chamber and ended only with the dawning! The fact of being obliged to shake ourselves out of the blankets before we dare to ensue ourselves with them, to chase centi-pedes and tarantulas from under the pillows, and to search the mattresses for possible serpents, lizards and vipers, is not conducive to peaceful slumber; nor is "three snakes sweetest rest" only moved when visioning down from the ceiling of venomous creatures which crawling up the bed-posts and spinning downward from the wall are dancing before one's weary eyes. Especially in the lowlands of the Sierra Caliente eternal vigilance is the price of safety. Imagine your sensations, gentle reader, upon awakening in the morning to see something thuttling in the breeze upon your window lattice or stretched along the floor like a shining ribbon, the cast-off skin of a cobra or some other objectionable snake which has been making its toilet in your immediate vicinity over night, or to have your dreams rudely broken in upon by something crawling down from the wall upon your pillow, perhaps barely missing your nose, which proves upon investigation to be a nest of scorpions with their tails twisted together, or a nice fat tarantula, whose body legs spread out, would meanlessly inches "from tip to tip." And whatever the alarm, upon no account must you jump out of bed without first striking a light and looking carefully where you step and what you touch. —N. Y. Herald.

OBITUARY.

Died on the 21st ult, at 12 o'clock p. m., of dysentery, in the 20th year of her age, Samantha L. L. L., daughter of Lavinia J. and F. H. L., of Washburn and wife of Washington D. L.
Decidedly a devoted husband, two children—one a bright-eyed little girl of four summers, the other an infant babe—fond parents, a loving sister and three brothers, together with innumerable relatives and friends to mourn their irreparable loss.

Just passing from the bloom of youth to the threshold of woman's estate, one of the fairest and loveliest of earth is cut down by the ruthless hand of death. Loved and respected by all, idolized by relatives and friends, while society will mourn the loss of one of its brilliant ornaments.
To attempt to give a pen picture of all the graces and virtuous qualities of the female character, as delineated and happily exemplified in the brief life of the subject of this notice, would be an idle task with meaningless words. Suffice it to say that for kindness and sympathy, duty and affection, innocence and purity, amiable and lovely disposition, virtuous life and exalted character, she was the peer of many and by none excelled. Gentle and modest, intelligent and beautiful, with countenance glowing with sunny smiles, like sunbeams playing upon the landscape in dazzling splendor, to behold which was but to love, enjoy and admire.
Deceased was paying a visit to her parents three weeks subsequent to her confinement, but one many hours had elapsed after her arrival, insidious disease had given warning to summon a physician to her bedside; and by prompt medical treatment and kind ministrations of anxious friends her convalescence and speedy recovery was not doubted for a moment till the seventh day of her sickness when a crisis had come.
Symptoms of a malignant character had set up which baffled the skill of her physician and cast a gloom over the household. Every indication of recovery was now adverse, save one, and that was that serene, cheerful and happy expression of the countenance which inspired all, and even the physician, with hope, almost up to the hour of dissolution, which occurred on the 10th day of her illness.
She was conscious to the last, and long before her departure she had grown cold and rigid, still that indefinable lovely expression continued. And when she felt that she must go she called the grief-stricken family group around her and addressed them as follows: "My dear husband, we can be together but a little while longer." Then, in a sweet ringing voice called out: "Pa, my dear pa, your baby will soon be gone!" And again, "My dear papa, don't grieve after me." Then, kissing little which will give an opportunity to visit this great Western Metropolis, and see its many attractions at any time, which are of greater interest and more varied than on any previous occasion. It will certainly pay you to take the trip.

A Captain's Fortunate Discovery.

Capt. Coleman, sch. Weymouth, plying between Atlantic City and N.
Y., had been troubled with a cough so that he was unable to sleep and was induced to try Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. It not only gave him instant relief, but allayed the extreme soreness in his breast.
His children were similarly affected and a single dose had the same happy effect. Dr. King's New Discovery is now the standard remedy in the Coleman household and on board the schooner.

Dimensions of Heaven.

[Columnus (Ga.) Enquirer.]

"Did you ever read the sixteenth verse of the twenty-first chapter of Revelation? No? Well, read it and you will get some interesting figures about the world above the skies. It gives the dimensions of heaven, and reads this way: 'And he measured the city with a reed, 12,000 furlongs.
The length and the breadth and the height of it are equal.'"

"Have you ever made the calculation?"
"Yes, here it is now," and he handled the reporter the following:
"Twelve thousand furlongs equal 98,703,688,000,000,000 cubic feet.
Reserving one-half of this space for the throne and court of heaven, and half of the balance for streets, we have the remainder 124,193,272,000, 000,000,000 cubic feet. Divide this by 4,000, the cubic feet in a room sixteen feet square, and there will be 30,321, 843,750,000,000 rooms. Now, suppose the world always will hold 900,000,000 inhabitants, and that a generation lasts thirty-three and one-third years, making in all 2,070,000,000,000 inhabitants every century, and that the world will stand 190,000,000 years, or 1,000 centuries, making in all 2,070, 000,000,000 inhabitants. Then suppose there were 100 worlds equal to this in the number of the inhabitants and duration of years, making a total of 2,070,000,000,000 persons, and there would be more than a hundred rooms sixteen feet square for each person."

We are putting more reading matter in the KENTUCKIAN than ever before, yet the price remains unchanged —only $2 a year. Try it for a year.

Letter From Rev. Geo. H. Means.

Pastor of the M. E. Church, Henderson Ky.—An Unqualified Endorsement From a Reputable Source.

To the Editor of Henderson Journal:

Having noticed in your paper many testimonials from some of our best and most prominent citizens in regard to the great benefit they have received from the treatment of Dr. H. M. Sherman, who is now in our midst, I desire to join with others in bearing testimony to his personal qualities, which have led me to appreciate him as a gentleman, and to my satisfaction of his capacity in the profession in the practice of which he seeks the desire of every one to see him reduced to their individual ailments, the physician's skill, especially one who deals successfully with the maladies that are most destructive and most difficult to cure, should have the encouragement and commendation of every friend of his race. It therefore affords me pleasure to speak favorably of Doctor Sherman. I have been afflicted for some time with throat and bronchial trouble, I entrusted myself to his care, and have improved rapidly and still am improving under his treatment, and consider this the best commendation I can give in his behalf to others.

Geo. H. Means.

The Result.

In the primary election held last Saturday Hon. Jas. A. McKee was defeated by Hon. Polk Lafoon. In the contest which has closed we gave our county man our earnest support and the result in this county shows that the position we took was approved by our people. Mr. McKee is defeated and Mr. Lafoon is the nominee. We do not approve of the method adopted to settle the contest among so many candidates, but Mr. Lafoon has received a plurality of the votes and we will cheerfully abide him with the will of the people and give him our earnest support.

LIVE INDIANS.

Ten Car Loads Pass Through The City.

A special train loaded with Indians and soldiers passed through the city at 11:30 o'clock Friday night. A large crowd waited at the depot from dusk until the late hour at which the train arrived to see the noble red men. When the first section stopped a rush was made for the platform, but the soldiers kept back the curious crowd and comparatively few of them had the pleasure of viewing the Indians. A reporter, through the courtesy of a good natured corporal, got a glimpse of one car-load. They were a dirty, ugly looking set, some of them half naked. They were filled indiscriminately on the seats and floor had taken altogether were a hard lot.

The St. Louis Republican gives this account of them:

"The special train bearing 333 Chickasaw Indians en route from the San Carlos reservation, Ariz., to Fort Marion, Fla., arrived at the Union depot at 7:30 Saturday morning, and for about two hours and a half proved a powerful centre of attraction for large crowds of people who were anxious to see the red man in his normal condition of dirt and degradation. There were 63 males, many of them considerably dilapidated, both as to garments and body, 175 squaws and 147 children of all ages, among which were several peopoles. All were dirty, wretched and miserable and apparently anything but pleased at their condition. They were in charge of eighty-two soldiers, commanded by Col. J. F. Wade of the Tenth cavalry and eight subordinate officers.

Relations were dealt out to the Indians here and they were supplied with hot coffee. They were transferred to the Louisville & Nashville train, their baggage, which consisted principally of skins and old blankets, being carried by the squaws, and at 10 o'clock started on their journey southward. The famous Genoa was not with the party, but is being taken South with sixty of his braves by way of Texas.

Among the party, however, was the Indian scout, "Dutchy," who killed the Mexican officer who killed Capt. Crawford of the United States army while out scouting recently. There were seven chiefs in the party: Ba-Kath-ay, Loco, Chevo, Jose, Zili, Chatto and Bishuany.

The following telegram was received last night:

Mr. Vernon, Ill., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—At 2:30 this afternoon the 385 Warm Spring and Chickasaw Indians passed through this city enroute for St. Augustine, Fla., guarded by United States troops. It was known that they would be transferred at this point to the L. & N. Southern division coaches and a crowd of 2,000 "pale faces" decked to the depot. The public schools were dismissed and nearly 1,000 scholars and teachers viewed the curiosities during their transfer. The Indians were good humored and well behaved with a few exceptions, and not a few strings of beads were sold by the Indian girls to a number of young men of this city. One old white-haired Indian woman was quite a curiosity. The only time the Indians displayed to smile was when they received the silver for their beads."

Dr. H. M. Sherman.

[Extract from Record, Dixon.]

This celebrated Physician and Surgeon is now at the Cobb House, filling his appointment. The Doctor is meeting with wonderful success, he has filled his dates so promptly in the past 12 months in this State that he has gained the confidence of the afflicted, and established a high reputation among them. He has made some remarkable cures in Henderson, Union and Webster counties. Dr. Sherman has received some wonderful testimonials from those who have been under his treatment, and have received permanent relief. Dr. Sherman is endorsed by some of the best physicians in the country as a man of extraordinary intelligence and ability. In diagnosis, it is truly wonderful. We have heard those who have visited him express themselves that he described their disease, located every ache and pain, all their afflictions, without asking them a question. He is candid and outspoken—a very conscientious physician—with an honorable gentleman; will not promise to do more than he conscientiously believes he can do. The letters he has in his possession from prominent business and professional gentlemen go to prove this fact. His frequent visits here, as well as elsewhere, looking after the interests of those who have placed themselves under his care, is enough to satisfy the greatest skeptic as to his reliability. His last visit here there were a great many who did not have the opportunity to consult him owing to his limited time. He will remain in Dixon until September 10, to give all those who wish an opportunity to consult him.

INTERESTING SPORT.

Various Methods of Destroying Alligators Practiced in Ceylon.

The tanks near our tents in Ceylon abounded in alligators, which came ashore to bask in the sun, all their heads turned towards the water except the watcher, whose face was turned landwards. When he gave the signal of danger there was a general stampede into the tank. They were so numerous that we did not think them worth powder and ball, and their horrid hides made me trouble to kill them than they were worth. Once, when we were walking home, I saw my friend, who was walking parallel to myself on the other side of the tank, which was about fifty yards broad, take a shot at an alligator right in front of him; an instant afterwards I heard the ball crash into the branches of a tree under which I was walking. It had been detected at right angles from the reptile's back, and I had a narrow escape in consequence.

The method of catching alligators which I once saw practiced in the southern part of the island, which affords some sport to those who are indifferent to the suffering it entails. You take a live puppy, and strap him on to a raft, formed of two pieces of rough wood lashed in the form of a cross. You sharpen all the four points of this cross and fasten it to a hatch of twice a yard long; to this you attach a rope. You mount the puppy, who is calling attention to his unhappy predicament by yelping loudly, on a still pool or backwater of the stream, and so the end of the rope to a tree. You then see that your puppy is handy, and with half a dozen or more natives, you sit under the tree and watch. In a few moments a pair of enormous jaws appear above the surface of the water, the puppy disappears into the water, but they do not close with the puppy, which they are opened, for the cross has struck into the brute's throat, and the strands of the bank of twine have got between his teeth. You now lay on the rope with a will, and slowly draw the reluctant monster to shore, while he laces the water with his tail in an impatient rage. When you have got him on shore you keep at a respectful distance, and make ball-practice with your revolver at his eye. If you keep on doing this long enough you finally kill him.

The alligators in some of the rivers of Ceylon are so voracious and numerous that the natives, who are very fond of bathing, sink off their bathing places. From these strongholds, you can easily tempt an alligator, should he come and poke his nose between the bars, and snuff your flavor—even jobbing at it with a knife. Near the mouth of the river I have heard of a man who was by the natives when they said it was safe to bathe, as the water was too safe for the alligators, and too fresh for the sharks. My impression is, had I made the experiment that I should have found them both there—Lawrence O'Connell.

THE WANTED GRAPES.

The Little Fellow Asks by a Detroit Woman of a Prospective Young Man.

Some time ago it was announced in the papers that a prominent Detroit would make a trip to Spain this summer. Three or four days after the announcement he replied a call at his home from an old lady, who introduced herself as living in the city and stating that she had read the notice.

"Yes, I shall visit Spain," he replied.

"These Malaga grapes come from Spain, don't they?" she asked.

"Yes."

"You will probably go right where they grow?"

"Undoubtedly."

"Well, I would like to see if you wouldn't do me a little favor, I'm very fond of Malaga, but I hate to pay two shillings a pound for 'em. I don't believe they are over ten cents a pound there, and I'll have thirty cents with you and have you bring me back three pounds. Please select large bunches, and don't have any saw-dust on 'em."

His astonishment was so great that he asked her the money and got away before he could speak. He rushed to the door just as she boarded a street car, and she called to him from the platform:

"Large bunches and no saw-dust. The saw-dust agrees with me!"

Labouchere at Munich.

"Some thirty years ago," says Mr. Labouchere, "I was an attaché at our legation at Munich. Old King Louis was then alive, though he had been deposed for making a fool of himself about Lela Monex. I used frequently to meet him in the streets, when he always stopped me to ask how Queen Victoria was. I had at last respectfully to tell him that her Majesty was not in the habit of writing to me every day respecting her health, and I was then the reigning King. At court receptions he liked to show off his knowledge of languages. In order to be quite correct in his English, he was accustomed to submit the observations that he considered making in that language to a professor of English. The professor once or twice got into a difficulty owing to our answers not being precisely what he had anticipated in the prepared conversations. So he came to us and explained the situation. At the time our conversations never encountered a hitch, for we knew what the King was to say, and arranged our answers so as to give him the cues."—N. Y. Post.
